

Bonsoir Madame,

After the crazy week following graduation, I've only gotten around to writing all of my amazing teachers...although this is an email, it was written with love!

I just wanted to say thank you so much for an amazing year(s)!

This year especially, I truly enjoyed being a part of Advanced French Conversation in its inaugural year.

It was a refreshing way to learn French, especially with you as our teacher. You may by know this, but on Kairos, Jack and I both were talking about the class, and we realized how much time and effort you really put into each unit we learned this year.

We can assure that it made a world of a difference for us as students learning a foreign language, which can be a difficult and monotonous undertaking. From colorful, decorated handouts, to cheese parties and films, our classes were always fun and fueled by your enthusiasm and genuine love for French language and culture.

I can really speak for all of our class when I say we appreciate it all, and will use our acquired knowledge in the real world.

I personally am (hopefully) studying abroad in Paris my second semester and am excited to see if, maybe this time, the natives will actually want to speak French with me. (They thought I was a silly American tourist last time!)

Merci beaucoup for an amazing year!
